CIGARETTE PICTURES.

An Indignant Protest from a Leading Critic.

Yesterday a leading merchant met an Appeal representative and called his attention to the new style of cigarette and tobacco advertising pictures now coming into vogue. The old style, only a few inches square, were looked upon merely as a nuisance, but the later style are larger even than cabinet size, and much more care is taken in the selection of the stage beauties, whose figures are reproduced by the artist's camera.

“I tell you,” said the merchant, who was an old man and the father of a family, “the Legislature ought to do something with these photographers.”

“Look at that,” he continued, showing the picture of a very voluptuous female, “what do you think of that?”

“Good figure,” said the scribe, “little large at the ankle, but fine calf and good bust and arms.”

“I agree with you, my boy,” was the reply, “but what makes me indignant is the amount of clothes they put on 'em,” and he held up another for inspection.

“When these things first came along they struck me as good, and they kept gettin' less clothes on 'em but the last few months a reaction has set in; a sort of retrograde movement, I might say, by which the actresses began to get on more clothes. I had just gotten accustomed to a high water line in the matter of tights and trunks, when the first thing I knew, the pictures began to wear more and more togger. Hang me if a stop isn't put to this thing they'll have regular dresses on next.”

“Now, here's one of the old style with just a light pair of trunks on, and the new style has a broad fringe below the trunks, and considerable clothing around the upper part of the body. Now I object to this infernal draping of the female figure. When people get to draping the female figure they don't know when to stop.”

Here the merchant threw down the pictures in disgust.
“You can't improve on nature, that's certain, and when you get these pictures with the idea that they are all in the pure innocence of nature, you get fooled, and the man who humbugs you ought to be made to pay damages for his nonsense.”

And the man went to the other end of the counter to weigh out 8 pounds of sugar to an old woman from the country.

At Burlington's.

Just received a full line of Gents' Kangaroo and English Porpoise shoes. These are something new and are warranted to wear out three pair of soles.

She Paid the Ect.

And still they come. Every day someone settles an election bet in a novel manner, and the end is not yet. During the heat of the campaign, two young ladies who reside at the “Palace” wagered $100 worth of champagne on their respective favorites. The blonde bet on Harrison and the brunette bet on Cleveland.

Night before last, the loser having received complete returns from Virginia, paid her bet, inviting about fifty friends to assist in the drinking.

The list was furnished the Appeal for publication, but it has been mislaid somewhere, and the chances are that it will not turn up for a day or so.

At Burlington's.

Just received a full line of Ladies' French Kid, Hand and Machine Sewed, of all styles and widths, ranging from $3 to $7.

SOME PURCHASING.

Adolph Sutro's Sensible View of It.

Adolph Sutro in building his cable road got all his material in California and when asked if it didn't cost him about $40,000 more than to have gotten his material in the East answered:

“You see the mechanics and artisans of the city are liberal patrons of the read. If I circulate my money by giving them employment, a good deal of it comes back again in the way of patronage and the money is kept on the Coast. Oh it is a good deal cheaper to spend the extra $40,000 right here in San Francisco. I always buy when I can get the cheapest goods instead of wasting $40,000 as you think, I save it in the long run.”

“This is the key to Sutro's success. He is a man with a long head and he knows that every dollar spent in the State he lives in is a dollar saved to the State and is good percentage for himself.”

Short-sighted people—and Carson is full of them—send their money away constantly, and they wonder why times are close. We heard a woman a few days ago complain that her husband's business was very poor, and we felt like telling her the reason.

It is because she “sends below” for everything she buys, and he “sends below” for everything he buys, and there are a good many people in Carson who have made up their minds not to patronize those who always “send below” for what they want.

If everyone in Carson would purchase their supplies “at home” for a year, real estate in this city would advance 25 per cent. on account of the advance in business. Can the lunatics never see it?”

At Burlington's.

Just received a full line of Ladies' French Kid Dongola and Straight Grain Goat Hand Sewed Waukenphasts of the latest styles and patterns.

A Fine Stallion.

F. Vanderhoof has recently brought a pure blooded stallion to this city which was bred at Haggins and Tevis' ranch in Kern county Cal.

It is a three-year-old and weighs between eleven and twelve hundred. It has the high head and symmetrical build of a Cleveland Bay, and is a Morgan-Belmont Cross.

He is now at Carney's stable where he can be purchased at reasonable figures. Such a stallion is an acquisition to the pure blood collection in the State.

Happiness and Health
